CLOSING STATEMENTS, THOUGHTS, & RESOURCES

This experience meant the world to me, and I'll forever be thankful for the friends who helped make this happen. I can only hope that this zine is a testament to that.

I want to personally thank Solo, Chayse, and Jo for the help and also apologize for not illustrating y'all in the comic portion of the zine. I chose not to draw everyone at the scene because I knew the task would have exceeded my personal bandwidth, especially for my first comic. I also don't recall exactly what everyone was doing since I was blind folded and being hit with a hammer for a majority of the scene.

You might see this and hold your breath or clench your fist. Feel wobbly in the legs and warm in the chest. If you're hot and bothered by this, DO NOT jump the gun and rush to replicate it. I heard about "Hog Slapping" months before I decided to do it. I did lots of research, talked with my friends about it, practiced, prepped, thought really hard about choosing the right letters, etc. You must take this seriously.

THIS IS HEAVY PLAY AND PEOPLE CAN GET HURT!

If you want to participate in something like this you need to have extensively thought about it, taken the steps to learn all aspects of it, and do it with people you trust! you must realize that even with precautions. Injury can occur.

The website below is where I gathered all of the information needed for this procedure. Including a materials list, advice on sanitation, and safety advice like where to strike, how to practice, and how to setup for the tattooing procedure.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT & DISCLAIMERS:

While the Ketchum Hammer is a device designed for tattooing it was not made for humans. Hence the name "Hog Slapper" as it is a tool used in the meat industry to tattoo pigs with identification numbers & letters for record keeping, disease management, and traceability. Tread carefully and plan accordingly if you seek to use it.

A licensed and professional tattoo artists was present during my procedure. When engaging in this activity tattooing best practices for sanitization should be followed. No environment will be completely sterile, however it is important to sterilize equipment as a safety measure to avoid infection. An infection can kill you or cause serious health problems.

All those involved gave full consent in regards to their participation with this procedure. Participation in this procedure can be a mix of tattoo work, body mod, and an act of sexual gratification akin to a hardcore S&M scene. Make sure all participants are aware of what this procedure is to you and that consent is established on the basis of the procedures meaning for each individual involved.

USE TATTOO INK MADE FOR HUMANS! Ketchum will suggest that you buy ink with the hammer, their ink is for animals not humans.

With each slap make sure to push down on the head of the hammer and "roll" it across the skin. making sure all needles penetrate the skin.

A post slapping "Ink Bath" or "Ink Wash" will give you better results and make the ink in your skin more prominent. To do this, simply rub tattoo ink directly into the wounds after your session. once it dries and is set, you can then go shower and wash yourself.

Mental prep and aftercare are important. Know that this will hurt and that you'll need hugs, encouragement, and some treats after or during the procedure. For me this was a mix of verbal encouragement and being fed M&M's inbetween strikes. After the procedure my group visited the local lesbian bar and we ate ice cream together. Aftercare can be anything, however know that if the person who was struck does not receive any aftercare, they will likely crash hard after the endorphins leave their body. PLEASE PROVIDE AFTERCARE!
